How might rising interest rates affect your mortgage?

The Bank of England has raised interest rates which means bigger mortgage bills for some homeowners.

At the start of February 2022, the Bank of England raised interest rates for the second time in three months from 0.25% to 0.50% to combat soaring inflation. This move will have a knock-on effect as mortgage lenders raise interest rates in response, which will increase monthly payments for some borrowers.

What does a rise in interest rates mean for your mortgage?

Anyone without a fixed-rate mortgage is likely to see their borrowing costs rise, although how they are affected will depend on the type of product they have. Your adviser can help you assess your mortgage deal and figure out ways to make some much needed savings.

- Only borrowers with a mortgage that moves up or down with the base rate will be affected by the interest rate change.
- This includes tracker mortgages and standard variable rate mortgages (which you revert to when a mortgage deal ends).

Fixed-rate mortgages

Most mortgage holders are on fixed-rate deals so won't see any change in their monthly payments. This is because the interest rate you pay stays the same for the length of the mortgage deal.

Standard variable rate mortgages

You will usually be moved on to a standard variable rate when your existing tracker or fixed rate mortgage deal ends. For example, if you take out a two-year fixed deal and you don't remortgage, you will be moved to the lender's standard variable rate. The rate is likely to be considerably higher than what you were paying before, so your monthly payments will increase, and lenders can raise the standard variable rate whenever they want.

Tracker mortgages

Homeowners with a tracker mortgage will find that their interest rate payments will now go up, but when this happens will depend on their lender. Tracker mortgages are a type of variable rate mortgage that follow the Bank of England's interest rate. So, when official interest rates go up, the rate on your tracker will rise as well.

As a rule, they do not exactly match the base rate, but are set a level just above it. For example, if the lender's rate is the base rate +1%, the interest you'd pay in total on your loan would be 1.5%.

Whatever type of mortgage you have, we can advise you about how the interest rate rise might affect you and address any questions or concerns you have.

How to save on your mortgage costs

The best thing you can do is to speak to your financial adviser. For example, if you're on a tracker mortgage, they will be able to advise whether changing to a fixed-term deal to protect yourself from any further rises is a good idea. They will also let you know about the fees involved when making changes to your mortgage. If you are on a standard variable rate you can switch at any time, so with interest rates rising, your adviser can help you look at available fixed-rate deals.

Homeowners on fixed deals don't have to worry about their mortgage going up until their current term ends. Most lenders will let you lock into a new deal six months before the current one ends so it's a good idea to plan.

Whether you're looking to remortgage or are a first-time buyer, we can help you find the most suitable deal for your circumstances and help keep your costs down.

What is income protection?

Income protection insurance pays out a percentage of your monthly income if you are unable to work.

Your income is important and keeps your family secure. So, if you are in a situation where you'd like to protect it if anything happened, you might want some income protection.

How does income protection work?

Income protection is an insurance policy, so you pay a monthly or annual premium for it like any other type of insurance. If you can't work because of sickness, disability, or other reasons (depending on your policy criteria), you will receive a regular income until you either return to paid work, retire, pass away or the policy term comes to an end.

The amount that is paid could be anything from 60% to 65% of your pre-tax income, and payments (which are tax free) will start after a pre-agreed waiting period, which could be weeks or months. You'll pay more in premiums if the waiting period is shorter, and the percentage of your income is larger.

Income protection is different to life insurance or critical illness cover, both of which do not pay regular amounts but instead give you one-off lump sums in the event of your death or the diagnosis of a critical illness. That's why it's important to seek financial advice if you are thinking about getting coverage.

Who could benefit from income protection?

If you work in a high-risk profession or have high-risk hobbies, you might want income protection in case you're unable to work because of an accident. If you've suffered an illness and feel you're at risk of being unable to work because of it, income protection could provide peace of mind, too.

Some things to consider if you are thinking about getting income protection include:

-  if you have a good level of statutory sick pay from your employer, you may not need more cover.
-  is it the best option for you and your situation? For example, do you (or your partner or spouse) have sufficient savings to help provide an income if you were unable to work?
-  can you keep up with the premiums?
-  will you find any exclusions in your policy difficult to manage?
-  are you close enough to retirement to not need income protection?

How are premiums calculated?

As with any insurance policy to do with your life and health, factors like your age, health condition, if you smoke, your occupation and others (like how much of your income you would like to receive, and how soon you would like payments to start) will be considered when your premium is calculated.

Our Protection Advisers will be able to give you advice and guide you through what type of policy works best for you, helping you find value for money as well as some peace of mind knowing your income is protected.

Feel more secure with income protection

When it comes to insurance, we're more likely to protect our pets than our income. Here's why it's important to have some income protection in place.

What is income protection?

Income protection pays out a percentage of your monthly income if you are unable to work due to illness, an accident or disability. It gives you a buffer between finding yourself without an income, paying the bills and protecting your family's security. Building an emergency fund (which covers around three months' worth of bills and essentials) is a good start to give you some financial back-up, but income protection insurance can also provide peace of mind.

Do you need income protection?

With the rise in the cost of living and cost of borrowing right now, many people are worried about paying the bills should anything happen that leaves them unable to work. Recent surveys have shown that the average UK family doesn't have enough in savings to be financially secure for long if they're no longer receiving an income.

That's where income protection can give you some financial resilience, especially if your workplace does not provide statutory sick pay (or only starts to pay out after a period of several months). Your adviser can help you navigate the income protection policies that could best suit you and your needs, weighing up how much your premiums might be with the amount of cover you're after.

Peace of mind for the self-employed

Sarah is self-employed and she approached her financial adviser for some advice. As a single mum, she worried that her emergency savings fund wouldn't be enough to cover the rent or bills if she found herself unable to work. Sarah's financial adviser found her an income protection plan with an affordable monthly premium that covers 65% of her earnings.
